

STEELWORKERS
FORGED TOGETHER

AN INTRODUCTION TO
MASTER BARGAINING
WITH U.S. STEEL

STRONGER TOGETHER

We're stronger together - that's why more than 10,000 steelworkers across the country bargain together for a master contract with U.S. Steel.

These upcoming negotiations will include major issues including pay, healthcare, pension, profit sharing, paid time off, job security and safety.

Every USW local at U.S. Steel will send representatives to the master negotiations in Pittsburgh. Our local leaders will work together with the USW's lead bargainers and technical experts to develop proposals and determine our bargaining strategy.

Local leaders also participate in local issue "tables" where we dig in and negotiate key issues with company counterparts. These tables include safety, benefits and pension, language, contracting out, and office and technical issues.

LOCAL BARGAINING

In addition to our master contract, each local union bargains a local contract supplement with local management. The local supplement covers site-specific working conditions such as parking, lunch rooms, locker rooms and wash rooms.

CONTRACT RATIFICATION

Once the union and company reach a preliminary agreement (also referred to as a "tentative agreement" or "TA"), it will be submitted to the union membership for ratification. All union members in good standing in the bargaining units covered by the master agreement are eligible to vote. Members will have an opportunity to review the TA and ask questions before voting.

After the two sides reach a tentative agreement, the union will send a detailed summary of the proposed agreement by U.S. mail to all union members along with ballots so they can participate in the ratification vote. They will also hold meetings where members can ask questions and get additional information. When members return their ballots, they go to a secure post office box in Pittsburgh, where a teller's committee made up of local union members will count the votes.

Ballots are pooled across all master agreement units and locations, and a simple majority determines whether the agreement is ratified.

Every member has an equal voice in whether or not to ratify a contract.
